

UHS SCHOOLS, STEELE CANYON

UHS Schools, Steele Canyon, is a non-public special education school located in Southeast El Cajon, nestled amongst an affluent residential area and spacious golf courses.

UHS Schools, Steele Canyon, offers a full array of educational services to students who are eligible for special education services. We provide educational services for both male and female students in grades K-8. The school serves students with Emotional Disturbance (ED), Significant Learning Disabilities (SLD), and/or Other Health Impairments (OHI). The student's average length of stay is approximately 12-24 months. Once successfully completing the program, most students are referred back to the public school system. In the past school year, 33%

the student population returned to a public school.

Individualized educational programs are designed for each student. Data driven, research based teaching strategies are implemented in all classrooms to provide students with a positive learning environment in which they are able to acquire skills as quickly and efficiently as possible. A few of the teaching techniques implemented are Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) and Direct Instruction.

UHS Schools has implemented the Girls and Boys Town Education Model. This therapeutic intervention is particularly applicable to classrooms serving those students diagnosed with emotional disturbance. Finding hope for children is something we do everyday. At UHS Schools, we see hope in every child.

Non-Public Special Education Schools

UHS Schools are year-round, non-public schools serving students diagnosed with autism, developmental disabilities, emotional disturbance and any other special education eligible category. We serve students ages three to twenty-two years. The goal of all UHS School Campuses is to provide a positive learning environment where each student's individual deficits are addressed and strengths are maximized. By improving in self-management of challenging behaviors and social skills, students are more likely to successfully transition to a lesser restrictive educational environment. UHS Schools has campuses located in Northern and Southern California as well as Texas.

Each classroom program develops an individualized educational program which addresses all educational domain areas. Individual behavior plans are developed to address students' challenging behaviors and teach socially appropriate replacement behaviors. As needed any student's educational and behavioral goals may be supplemented with designated instructional services as stated in the student's IEP. Teaching strategies used in our schools are research-based. We provide students with the strategies that will lead them to acquire skills efficiently, for some students they will learn more than one year's worth of skills in a year at school. All school programs are fully in compliance with best practice standards established by the California Department of Education and our local school districts.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Our students are referred to us by contracting school districts and SELPAs (Special Education Local Plan Areas) located in the surrounding counties. The student's Individualized Education Plan (IEP) must identify each student as needing special education services in order to attend UHS Schools. An interview with the student and parents/guardians is required prior to admission. UHS Schools are considered a restrictive environment. Students are supervised at all times.

In an effort to further assist public schools in addressing student and staff needs at their own school, UHS has expanded its Non-Public Agency (NPA) Services to include Behavior Consultation and Staff Training.
